

THE GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 28.

A party which compliments the president in one resolution and then strikes him a severe blow in another, will not go into the campaign with that enthusiasm which means to win.

Mr. Cleveland's trip of over four thousand miles, to boom himself for a second term, will cost him (?) in the neighborhood of ten thousand dollars. He will never get any dividends from that trip.

Concerning the practical operation of prohibition in the capital of Iowa, it appears that the city loses $80,000 a year formerly received from license, while the county is burdened with a large and increasing debt which it has no money to pay. And the worst of it is that prohibition does not prohibit, the consumption of liquor has greatly increased, and it is said that some of the authorities employed to enforce the law connive at its violation.

Philadelphia Record: Monopoly is the only refuge of the protected interests, and a repeal of protective laws the only safety of the people.

Well, the people have been pretty safe under the present protective laws for the past twenty-five years. The American people have prospered more under protection than they ever did under free trade. The tariff laws will remain pretty much as they are, and the country will go on prospering, notwithstanding the howling of free traders.

According to reports the Statute of Liberty has innocent blood on its hands. It is responsible for the daily slaughter of immense numbers of little birds which in winging their way south on their annual migration are attracted by the brilliant electric light of the big torch. On one morning recently no less than 1,600 of the little creatures were picked up, and their condition indicated that they had dashed themselves against Liberty's bronze bosom, and had been thrown crushed and lifeless at her feet.

The Church of the Holy Trinity, in New York, having engaged an English clergyman, Rev. E. Walpole Warren, as rector, Mr. Kennedy, president of the St. Andrew's society, calls upon the collector of customs to prosecute the church officers for violating the law of congress which prohibits "importation and immigration of foreigners or aliens under contract or agreement to perform labor in the United States." Mr. Kennedy thinks that as the law is enforced stringently against all other workmen, it should be applied to those whose labor is performed in the pulpit.

The urgent call from the New York World and other democratic journals for an extra session of congress to stop the surplus, empowers everything the republican press has said about democratic inactivity. The democrats have held power in the lower house—where revenue measures must originate—for twelve years, and now, after failing to improve the opportunities offered in half a dozen congresses, they are howling for an extra session to relieve past delinquencies. It is a confession that the democracy has been and is an amazing and monumental example of organized impotence.

The usual consistency of the democratic party is displayed by the democrats of Massachusetts. In the late state convention, for instance, in that state, their platform heartily eulogized President Cleveland and his administration. After that was done enthusiastically, a committee reported on the subject of civil service reform, and bitterly denounced the administration because it retained eighty-three per cent of republican federal offices in Massachusetts—which was received with intense demonstrations. To make their inconsistency more emphatic the convention elected four anti-Cleveland delegates-at-large to the anti-democratic national convention of 1888.

The crop reports from the British Isles this year is astonishing, in that they show a shortage of hay, turnips, potatoes, and other kinds of feed aggregating 14,000,000 tons, being the equivalent of $25,000,000 bushels of corn. As recent reports from the valley of the Danube intimated that the corn crop of that section is considerably below an average, it is fair to infer that American holders will have the opportunity of selling for export much larger quantities of the feed stuffs than usual. The material most in demand will be corn and oil-cake for the feeding of live stock, while a consequence of this shortage should also be an increased demand for our wheat and flour. The knowledge of these facts is causing the markets for breadstuffs in the United Kingdom to be very strong.

A few republicans over in Iowa, who call themselves independents, have issued a manifesto on the alleged workings of the prohibitory law in that state, which sets forth that after ample time was applied to large cities, and with all the power, authority, machinery, and constabulary that legislation can furnish, it has been a wretched persecution in its methods and an equally wretched failure in its results in the capital city of the state. The manifesto then pretends to show that since January, 1886, there have been 4,000 search warrants issued in Des Moines and that 3,000 of them were returned with no liquor found; that the searches have been made in numerous cases for the personal benefit of constables on the one hand and of professional informers on the other, who, after pocketing their share of the penalties, have dismissed the cases; that illegal guarantees of immunity from search have been made for a consideration; and that the officials have been lawless and brutal in their methods of search, invading the homes of citizens and not hesitating to use violence, with fatal consequences in some instances, and with the result that there has been no decrease in the amount of liquor drunk.

Another point which these independent republicans attempt to make is that some of the cities affected by prohibition has lost considerable in the way of business, that all sorts of trade have been stagnated by the iron grasp of the liquor law. It is a very poor excuse to offer that the law is not enforced, that prohibition drives trade from cities, and that wretched persecutions are permitted to be made. There should be power enough in Iowa to enforce the law. It is a disgrace to any city or to any state to have the laws violated with impunity; and to affirm that the want of saloons drives trade and commerce from any city is a libel on the credulity of intelligent voters. A city that can't be sustained except by the power and the influence of the saloon, should go down, for it is not worthy to be sustained. It is too early in the day yet for the temperance people of Iowa to succumb to the influence of the liquor interest of that state. A backing down now will make the saloon both in politics and in society a greater evil than it ever has been before.

A LAMP EXPLOSION.

It Destroys the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Hock, of Muskegon, Michigan.

Three of Their Little Children Perish in the Burning House.

The Distracted Mother Becomes Delirious, and Will Probably Die.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Chicago, Sept. 28.—Three little children of Mr. and Mrs. Hock, at Muskegon, Mich., were suffocated to death last night. The parents had gone up town leaving the children alone. A burning lamp exploded and set the house on fire. The parents returned to find their home in ruins and the charred corpses of the children. Mrs. Hock is delirious with grief and will probably die.

No Shooting in the Streets.
JULIEN, Ill., Sept. 28.—Oscar W. Noubel, who committed Chicago Anarchist, who spent Monday night in a solitary cell, was taken out yesterday morning and put through the motions of a public execution, and was transferred to a cell in the prison, and was assigned to labor in the harness shop, under the register number 5873.

The Haddock Case.
Stout, Conn., Sept. 28.—Arguments on the motion for a new trial in the Haddock case were concluded at the Municipal court yesterday afternoon, and the matter was taken under advisement by Judge Wakefield, who will give a decision on Friday, which time will be allowed for the appeal, which will be pronounced in case the motion is denied.

The Cholera.
Room, Sept. 28.—During the past twenty-four hours 112 new cases of cholera and 63 deaths were reported in Moscow, and 4 new cases and 3 deaths in Canada.

Abram Cohen's stock of goods is being moved from Beloit to this city. Mr. Cohen will open at Davis Bros' old stand next week.

Marshall Hogan rescued a drunk this morning just in time to keep him from falling into the pipe trench in front of the postoffice.

The best way to become a chronic invalid, is read a local physician this morning, "is to read a Health Journal, and give it direction."

Miss Lou Sparklin, Yankirk Bro's wide-awake cashier, now sits in peace behind a very esthetic bookkeeper's desk of bronze and old gold.

Mrs. Mary J. Packman died at her home on Academy street this morning. She was seventy-five years of age. Notice of the funeral will be given later.

Water works and electric lights, says the Milwaukee Journal, are not so much an indication of enterprise as of recklessness when a village runs in debt for them.

Badger Council No. 223, Royal Arcanum, assemble in regular semi-monthly session this evening—lodge room in the Lippia block, East Milwaukee street.

First ward people have been awakened lately by what they claim were burglars. One man spent a night watching for the marauders with a shot gun.

Cards are out for the wedding of Dr. Frank T. Fowles and Miss Ada Humphrey, at Sherriff, next week Thursday. The groom is a son of R. T. Fowles, of Johnston.

Mrs. E. G. Fildes and her daughter, Mrs. Frank Sherriff and Miss Kate Fildes, entertained a number of friends at progressive evening last evening. The time was very delightfully spent.

Mr. Williams has commenced the laying of the water service on West Milwaukee street, commencing at the Grand hotel, working east. This makes a complete wreck of the old Nicholson pavement.

The city of Madison has just received another four-wheel horse carriage for use in its fire department. The carriage cost $700 and will be used in the S. C. Finney company. All live fire departments are now discarding the two-wheel carts for carriages.

Mrs. Sarah E. Constable, relict of William J. Constable, a veteran of the Mexican war and the War of the Rebellion, died at her home in the first ward last night. She left one daughter. No funeral announcements have yet been made.

Late files of Indiana papers contain accounts of the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Hargrove at Morristown, in that state. The wedding will be heard of with interest by many readers of the Gazette. Mr. Hargrove is a brother of Mrs. Isaac Miles.

The foundation for the stand-pipe of the water works is completed, and Engineer Williams has telegraphed the contractors who are to build the huge iron column that everything is now ready for them. He expects them to commence the stand pipe in a few days.

The Caledonian society will hold their next social and literary entertainment at Milton Junction Nov. 1. The members of the society will invite their friends as a good time is in store for all. Mrs. Day and others will contribute towards the literary entertainment.

Captain Fred H. Koebelin's work as drill-master of the Milkmaid's squad, has been remarkable. In his hands the company has reached a proficiency that has seldom been equaled. The fancy movements at last night's practice drill were novel and remarkably well executed.

Besides the Milkmaid's drill Friday night there is to be a choice musical and literary program; a sale of fancy articles under the auspices of the bright-eyed young ladies of the church, and an oyster supper. Supper tickets will be fifteen cents and admission tickets ten cents.

On Thursday evening of this week there will be an interesting missionary exercises at the lecture room of the Baptist church, in which young ladies dressed in the costumes of the countries they represent, will present their tribute to Christianity, a central figure. There will also be other exercises of interest, to which all are cordially invited.

Among the latest schemes for swindling farmers is one under the guise of a society to prevent the killing of birds. The swindler calls at a home, tells glibly of the good done by birds, and finally asks the farmer to sign a pledge not to kill any bird for twelve months. This pledge, after a little manipulation, turns up a promissory note, and makes trouble.

THE AMERICAN CUP.

How it was first brought to the country.

With each race for the American cup the story of former contests is told and retold until newspaper readers know it well. Yet with each recurring race the history must be repeated and the New York yachting authorities give it as follows:

The American cup was originally the One Hundred Guinea cup, the cup which the Royal Yacht Squadron put up at its annual regatta around the Isle of Wight. This race was open to all nations and to all sorts and sizes of vessels, a gracioso, a pleasure craft, with no allowance for size or rig. A new cup was put up each year and the yacht that got around first won it absolutely. The American cup is of solid silver, weighing one hundred ounces and being exactly two feet high.

The winning of it by the American is significant only because of the tremendous speed with which she ran away from her competitors when all had the same wind and conditions.

In 1853 James Ashbury, of the Royal Yacht Club, sent over the Cambria to win back the cup. She was defeated by the American fleet out of seventeen yachts entered. In 1871 the Columbia beat the Cambria at the Ashbury's regatta. In 1870 and again in 1881 the Canadians made vain efforts to win back the cup for the Union Jack. On February 26th, 1885, Sir Richard Scott, owner of the British outer yacht, the second fastest boat in British waters, challenged for the cup. The Turbin and the Priscilla were built to meet her. The Priscilla modeled by Edward Burgess, of Boston, was chosen to meet her, and in the presence of thousands the contest took place.

Both this race and the one last year between the Mayflower and the Gaillard, are well remembered. America was triumphant in each, and each resulted in the building of boats faster than had ever been brought out before.
